Editorial

This time of year used to be called the ‘silly season’ – not much of importance happening, so the daftest, trivial items and stories appeared in the news. That can hardly be said to be case this year! For the last month there has been a whirl- wind of momentous events which are going to be with us for a long time.

Many people, including those not usually bothered too much by politics and national or world affairs, have become quite motivated; for others, they have had a bit too much and are showing real signs of strain and unease. About the only thing we can say for certain just now is that nothing is certain; so much is changing.

However, help is at hand! Take heart! August 1st is Yorkshire Day. Our three ‘thriddings’- or Ridings - have been established since the tenth century, and can still be referred to as valid areas despite the many changes in boundaries over the years.

Let us remind you again that on this day the declaration for the integrity of the County is proclaimed in York as follows:

I, (name), being a resident of the [West /North/ East] Riding of Yorkshire [or City of York] declare:

That Yorkshire is three Ridings and the City of York, with these Boundaries of 1135 years standing;

That the address of all places in these Ridings is Yorkshire;

That all persons born therein or resident therein and loyal to the Ridings are Yorkshiremen and women;

That any person or corporate body which deliberately ignores or denies the aforementioned shall forfeit all claim to Yorkshire status.

These declarations made this Yorkshire Day [year]. God Save the Queen!”

Of course you don’t have to take it too seriously, but when things seem to be in turmoil it isn’t a bad idea to think of more changeless things: you can’t take away our wonderful landscapes of dales, moors and coast, the broad acres full of sheep and cattle, our great houses, all our great cities with their unique contribution to history, commerce, culture and science; and the long list of great Yorkshiremen and women. Neither are you likely to see the end of the flat cap, the cautious, possibly blunt, approach ‘till we get to know ‘em’... but then a warmth of welcome to the stranger in our midst. And we can take the mockery: ‘You can always tell a Yorkshireman - but you can’t tell him much’. Then there is the warmth of our dialect, with the subtle differences between the Ridings; never let us lose those unique words and phrases that far outdo present ‘newspeak’.

But maybe best of all this time, why not make the most of Yorkshire? If we can, let’s don the boots or get on the bike, take the binoculars, jump in the car to revisit the lanes and areas we haven’t been to for a bit - enjoy the changelessness and relax. It’ll do us no harm, and we might see the country and the world in a clearer light after a bit! Let Yorkshire come to our aid!

News from the BAWB Federation

Another busy academic year has just come to an end which is rather hard to believe. As always, the summer term has been packed full of numerous events and activities, and everyone is pleased to have reached the long summer holiday to re-charge their batteries.

In the last half term the children have participated in the usual summer sporting activities including Multiskills for our younger children, BAWB sports day at Askrigg, Cluster Sports at The Wensleydale School and Rounders. The Key Stage 2 children had a trip to York to see 'Groovy Greeks' which they said was brilliant and really brought their summer term topic to life. The younger children have just had a lovely day at Newby Hall (on the hottest day of the year!) where they enjoyed the adventure playground and a ride on the miniature railway, not to mention getting thoroughly soaked in the water park! All of the children have also been able to participate in a 'Virtual BAWB' day where they were able to stay in their home school whilst working with the children in the other two schools via the use of Skype. They had great fun creating a Greek themed animation using the Chromebooks and despite an occasional technical glitch, everything went off well and perhaps showed the future of education!

Our 'Moving Up' days offered the opportunity for the children to all move up to the classes they will be in from September. The Year 6 children spent two days at The Wensleydale School where they met new classmates and staff and sampled a lesson in each of the subjects they will be studying. They had great fun and can't wait to move there! Meanwhile, all the children of our three schools moved up a class which they all found very exciting. Bainbridge School was full of new Nursery children having great fun, whilst some of the older nursery children moved into the Infant class where they suddenly became 'big' children and stepped up to their new responsibilities. Those children who will be moving between Askrigg and Bainbridge schools by bus thought it was brilliant to have that journey as part of their day and all managed very well, amidst great excitement.

The staff and governors would like to thank all parents, families and friends for their support during the past year and wish everyone a very happy, relaxing and well deserved summer holiday. All too soon, September will be upon us and another academic year will begin, so let us just enjoy a brief moment to celebrate the achievements of the past year and wish all those leaving us every success in their new schools.

Leyburn Bowling Club

Many thanks to everyone who came along to the Coffee and Cake for club funds which presently include the possibility of building a new clubhouse. The event, which was also attended by our MP, Rishi Sunak, was a huge success and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves, especially those who took part in our fun bowling competition!

As far as our league matches are concerned this has been another good month for Leyburn. In our Wednesday evening JSW League we won consecutive home games against Northallerton Gold and Sowerby Flatts, before losing at champions Hutton Rudby, and then winning at home to Richmond and away at Sessay, and we are now 5th in the League. In the Friday afternoon Bateson League we are in an even better position. An away defeat at Easingwold was followed by two home wins against Bishop Monkton and Thirsk, and although we are presently also 5th in this table we are only 3.5 points behind the leaders and with a game in hand of all the other teams.

All Change in Askrigg

There have been a few changes in Askrigg over the past month which may not have escaped your attention. Askrigg Village Kitchen, the successful deli/takeaway/tea room business run by Jo Benbow, has moved to premises on the sunny side of the street. They are settling into their new home and still offering the same service to their customers, along with more sunshine! Meanwhile, the two units they previously occupied are now available to rent, either as one unit or two. The property is owned by The Askrigg Foundation, a small local charity, supporting the work of the church in the community, and the Trustees are keen to find tenants who will bring a vibrant and valuable business to the residents and visitors of the busy village of Askrigg. All enquiries should be directed to the charity's office (650800) or to the agents, Charltons (01748-822525) For the time being, the satellite Post Office service is continuing to operate from the vacant unit on Mondays and Wednesdays but negotiations are underway to re-locate to another site in the village as soon as practicable.

There are also some wonderful planters that have appeared around the village thanks to an initiative by the Parish Council. Beds have been planted by the village signs at either end of the village and planters placed in the centre of the village, all funded by donations, and planted up by Allen Kirkbride (Chair of the Parish Council), Andrew Craske and his son, Joseph. They look fabulous and are much appreciated by residents and visitors.

Two Dedications

On the sunny afternoon of Sunday July 17th, a group of 20 people gathered on the site of the new, non-denominational, Hawes cemetery for a short service of dedication. After a welcome and introduction by Councilor John Blackie, Bishop James, Anglican bishop of Ripon and Methodist minister the Rev Janet Park, supported by all present, carried out the dedication. Representatives of the Roman Catholics and Society of Friends (Quakers) were also present.

Several people have asked us to record the outstanding service of over 30 years given by Mrs Jean Airey as secretary to the Methodist Cemetery which is becoming full.

Shortly afterwards, supported by a much larger body of people, mostly local residents or those with strong ties to the area, the new War Memorial at Town Head was dedicated. Cllr Blackie presided, the band played, the uniformed services paraded, the school children sang a hymn and a number of moving tributes were made by young and old. Helped by an enthusiastic band of youngsters Bishop James and the Rev Janet Park dedicated the memorial. The names of the fallen from both world wars were read out and wreathes were laid by many, including currently serving representatives of the armed forces.

After a memorable and emotional dedication service, all were invited to the Fountain for complimentary refreshments.

Progress in Finding a New Vicar

On 8th July, members of our four church communities welcomed two candidates for the role of Vicar of the Upper Wensleydale Benefice.

We are led to believe that interviews went well and we now await news on whether an appointment has been made and if so, who our new vicar will be. Hopefully, this announcement will be made by the end of the month and we all really hope we can welcome our new incumbent to the area in the early autumn. Meanwhile, members of our church communities continue to work very hard to ensure our churches remain open and welcoming and our services continue as best they can without a permanent vicar. We have been aided greatly by the services of a number of retired clergy (and some not yet retired!) who have travelled here to take services at all of our churches and we have delighted in meeting them and experiencing their different worshipping styles. Without their assistance, we would have struggled to continue our regular service pattern during the interregnum. K.P.

DCM Friends' Gift Day

one was explained, especially the amassing of photographs and interests of pretty well everyone living in Askrigg and Low Abbotside!

Notes from Thorney Mire

Opening the barn door, there was a squeaking noise and a mouse shot out, quickly followed by a stoat. I don't know what the outcome was of that encounter, but I can guess. In June, the BBC programme Springwatch showed footage of an adult rabbit chasing a stoat which in turn was chasing a baby rabbit.

I saw a similar thing once on a walk near Ashes. Hearing loud squeals, obviously an animal in distress, I looked over the wall and saw a mother rabbit giving chase to a stoat which was chasing her terrified baby. The mother eventually headed the stoat away from the baby, which retreated towards the wall. The last I saw of them was the stoat running up the hillside with the mother rabbit in hot pursuit. I have a love-hate relationship with stoats. They are good for keeping down mice and rabbits, but when one killed all eight of my ten week old chickens, then I took a different view of them. These were the chickens I had watched struggle out of the eggs in the incubator, nurtured under a heat lamp for six weeks, put out in the barn to acclimatise and then, when I thought I had put them in a safe enclosure, the stoat got in and killed them all. To almost quote MacDuff "All my pretty chickens at one fell swoop."

The verges down the lane have once again been full of flowers, with the usual water avens, Welsh poppies and marsh marigolds and a patch of orchids. The sweet cecily seems to have grown even taller this year sending a scent of aniseed in the breeze.

I always thought that tree creepers were dull, mouse-like little birds when I had seen them at a distance, climbing jerkily up the sides of trees but I managed to get within four feet of one when one flew on to the barn near to where I was standing. I was behind a tree and it didn't seem to notice me. Close to, it is an attractive bird with buff and white markings and a curved beak. I watched it move along the barn wall, beneath the guttering before flying away. I saw a flash of yellow down by the viaduct and a grey wagtail flew passed.

Apart from the usual, regular visitors to the bird table there have been greenfinches and a siskin. Last year we had a "crowd" of baby chaffinches and blue tits wanting to be fed, but this year it was the turn of the great tits with the chaffinches.

The most entertaining have been the woodpeckers.

The first day, father woodpecker came along with baby son, the son being as big as the father but not so colourful, his white feathers looking drab, as if he needed a good wash; the father fed him.

The second day, the son came by himself. He clung on to the peanut holder, hopped all the way round it without taking any food, he didn't seem to have a clue what to do. He went to the seed tray, toppled backwards, regained his balance and without eating anything he flew off, presumably to look for his dad. The third day he came along and was able to feed himself, but when dad appeared he took food from him as well.

The swallows have nested under the eaves of the house this year, making it look like a can of whitewash has been thrown at the wall. It was impossible to tell how many young were in the nest, but a lot of twittering has been going on and I don't mean on social media.

Red Spotted in Worton

This morning I looked out of my front window and I thought what on earth is that on the bird feeder. It took a moment to realise it was a red squirrel.

My digital camera has just packed up so I took a number of photos with my mobile phone through the front window. The photos are not as good as I would have liked due to the fact that it started to rain and spotted the windows.

My home address is Newlands Worton.

Young People Give Youth Club the Thumbs Up!

After relaunching a year ago, Hawes and District Youth Club is celebrating a brilliant year with high numbers of 11 – 16 years olds attending. The club which meets every other Wednesday, 6:30 – 8:30pm at Hawes Market House aims to provide positive activities for young people so that they can have fun, relax, try something new and talk about issues affecting them. The club continues to be supported by Hawes and High Abbotside Parish Council, the Upper Wensleydale Community Partnership and North Yorkshire Youth, a local youth association. For this club to continue running successfully volunteers are essential. Whether you can do every session, every other session or just a one-off activity please get in touch with Richie Bastow - 07584 263 978. Support and training are offered to all volunteers.

Thank you, Wensleydale Press

Our car was hit recently whilst parked near the Wensleydale Press. Nigel and Liz came running to our rescue and although no-one was hurt, chairs and mugs of tea were provided swiftly to help us all recover from the shock of the incident. They also provided guidance and telephone support during the necessary procedures that follow on such occasions and then, after we had disrupted their work for more than an hour, drove us on to our intended destination on the other side of Hawes. This is a real example of Dales community spirit.

Thank you, Liz and Nigel for being our guardian angels!

Windows 10 some tips (and woes)

The Windows 10 free upgrade for Windows 7 and Windows 8 users ended on July 29th and so if you haven't upgraded by the time you read this it is probably too late. I thought I would give a little heads-up of new things in Windows 10 and some of the annoyances.

First off I've upgraded two laptops and a desktop computer at home without too many hassles. The same cannot be said for some of the computers I have upgraded for customers.

The main issue seems to be that during the upgrade your computer is checked for compatibility and if anything is found that won't work the upgrade process won't happen until you have dealt with the identified issues. The problem is that the detection process is at best inconsistent and at worst downright wrong.

To give a couple of examples a Lenovo laptop I was updating said there were no issues but froze completely during the upgrade. On doing a bit of searching it turned out the wireless device used by Lenovo in this particular model doesn't work with Windows 10. This problem has been well known (and confirmed by Microsoft) since last year and yet there is still no solution other than dismantling the computer and removing the wireless card.

Whenever I have had issues it has always been with poor support for old hardware. The most common driver issues are with connections (wireless and wired) – some drivers need to be installed by Windows update AFTER the upgrade – which is brilliant since you can't connect to the internet to get them.

On to new things: firstly you will see the start button and start menu have reappeared after their absence in Windows 8 but is completely redesigned since Windows 7. Click on the Start Button and the right hand part of the menu is active apps (tablet and phone style). I have yet to find any of these apps worth bothering with. Useful functions have reappeared on the left of the menu and you might think "PC Settings" replaces the old Control Panel. This is partially correct – Microsoft have scattered and hidden settings through many pages and the old Control Panel is still there (you just can't see it on the start menu). First tip is to try right clicking on the start button and you find some of the missing things pop up again. For the time being I am sticking with the Windows 10 menu on my laptop but if you don't intend to use the menu apps panel you can go back to the old Windows 7 style menu by going to classicshell.net and downloading and installing Classic Shell. (After you install it you can still use the Windows 10 menus by holding down the shift key when you click the start button).

The other thing that jumps out is the "I'm Cortana. Ask me anything" box at the bottom of the screen. This is really Microsoft's way of getting you to use their Bing Search Engine and the new browser Microsoft Edge. If you don't want it taking up that space find a blank area of the Task Bar and right click – in the Cortana menu select Hidden and the box disappears.

The major innovation in Windows 10 is the new Microsoft Edge browser. It is intended to replace Internet Explorer (which is still available in the start menu). Edge has not received much in the way of positive reviews and I must admit I installed Google Chrome to be able to ignore both Edge and Internet Explorer.

Finally – Microsoft want you to use the new start menu apps because they are tied into their cloud services and app store. As a result you may find some apps opening up and replacing programmes you prefer to use – such as Adobe Reader. If you want to select your own default programme go to the control panel (right click on Start or open Classic Shell from start) when the control panel appears type "Default Programs" then click on "Set your default programs". It takes a few seconds for the list of programmes to appear. Click on the ones you want to use and then click on "Set this programme as default". When you have finished close the window. This will allow you to use the programs you want to use – not what Microsoft twist your arm into using.

That's it for this month – if you have any questions (or suggestions for articles – which would be really helpful) do send me an email at carol.haynes@dalescomputerservices.com

Good Time at the Castle

We had an enjoyable North Country Theatre experience. After some hesitation at booking tickets for an open-air performance, given the dodgy weather we have had recently, we opted to see the production at Bolton Castle. It poured with rain all day and it seemed a bit silly to pack a picnic but we are British so we did! And the sun broke through the clouds as we left home and we arrived at the castle car park at 6.00pm to see blue skies, feel the warmth of the sunshine, and enjoy wonderful views across the dale. So we had a memorable picnic after all, sitting in the field opposite the car park and watching the swallows skimming over the grass in front of us. However, the cast had decided mid-afternoon that an open-air rendering of Twelfth Night that evening would not be enjoyable for anyone so they had decamped the set to the banqueting hall inside the castle. Thus we had the best of both worlds – enjoyable picnic outside and a warm and dry performance inside. And, as could be expected, Twelfth Night set in the 1930s was rather different from the normal Shakespearean experience. We heard that the Thursday night performance at Bolton Castle was not so lucky: dry weather all day but rain set in about 6.00pm, after the stage had been set up in the field near the castle. Once again, the cast and some of the props moved inside but there was not time to set up the stage and only those in the front few rows of the audience saw very much. I studied Twelfth Night for O level but I don't remember it being so much fun as this production was!

Moorcock Centenary Show

The One Hundredth Moorcock Show will be held on Sunday September 4th at Mossdale Farm, Hawes, with the gates opening at 10.30am and judging commencing at noon. This is a traditional Yorkshire Dales Sheep Show but, apart from the sheep, we have a very special visitor this year, not a Royal, but someone as important - PEPPA PIG! The first one hundred children attending the show will receive a free celebratory mug. Music will be provided at lunchtime by the Hawes Silver Band, and later in the afternoon there will be a Jazz Band playing. In addition to these attractions there will be the usual local crafts and food stalls. The entry charge is £5 per adult, with children under 16 free, as is car parking.

News From the Dales Countryside Museum

2016 is a significant year for the Yorkshire Dales, it being the bicentenary of artist J.M.W. Turner's tour of Yorkshire. We are celebrating this anniversary with an exhibition during August and September.

Two artists feature in the exhibition, Jo Hume and Debbie Loane, who have engaged with the Yorkshire Dales in ways which echo Turner's activity. They have connected directly with the landscape, taken inspiration from the dramatic views and followed in his footsteps.

The Turner Trail was created many years ago and has recently been promoted again through Welcome to Yorkshire. The exhibition links with the trail and provides an accessible way of connecting with the landscape and the views which inspired Turner. The exhibition includes many of the stunning landscape features of the Yorkshire Dales. By working with contemporary landscape artists and photographers we have highlighted the landscape features in which Turner was so interested.

Mining Collection

Following the closure of the Yorkshire Dales Mining Museum at Earby, the Kettlewell Providence Mine Water wheel and crusher have been moved here. We have successfully gained planning permission to house the wheel adjacent to the bridge and are continuing to raise funds to enable its reconstruction. These items are very significant to the history of the Yorkshire Dales. We are also in the process of putting together a grant application to the Heritage Lottery Fund to redisplay more of the various other mining artefacts acquired from the Yorkshire Dales Mining Museum in the main museum gallery. All of these fascinating items are currently housed in the museum's store.

If you feel able to support this project with a donation it would be much appreciated.

School Visits

We have been very busy with various schools visiting to learn about the different periods of history. We had two visits from Leyburn Primary School. One class took part in a Victorian themed workshop and they made old fashioned sweets, while the second class looked at the Vikings and tasted traditional bread with a Viking inspired dish made with nettles.

We also had two schools from York and Sheffield, who were on a residential trip to Hawes. They took part in a Farming Workshop and an Anglo-Saxon workshop which we recently developed to complement the school curriculum. We would like to say a big thank you to all the volunteers who helped out with the various educational workshops

Wensleydale in Words

An Anthology by Wensleydale Writers

REVIEW

Here is a beautifully produced little book (90 pages) by 15 writers: poetry, stories, nostalgia, succinct facts about the Dale's villages and accompanied by some lovely botanical drawings and pencil sketches of the area.

Whether you like a touch of humour, a legend or a review of place-names, you will really like it; not least the Foreword by Dr Rosie Page, the real-life daughter of the real James Herriot.

Wensleydale Writers was formed in 2005 and occasional collections of their work have supported local good causes. This book, printed and published by the Country Press in Bainbridge, is being sold in aid of Herriot Hospice Homecare for £5.00 and is just as attractive to locals as to visitors, for whom it will make a great little Christmas gift.

Copies can be ordered from susenic@aol.com or 640415 and are available in local retail outlets:

Towlers Newsagents in Leyburn,
Herriots and Masons in Hawes,
West Burton village shop,
Berry's at Swinithwaite.

Also look out for the Herriot Hospice Homecare stall at Wensleydale Show. Copies also on sale there. A.S.W.

Can You find Them?

Exactly 200 years ago the artist JMW Turner travelled to Yorkshire for a three-week tour and produced six sketch books. The current exhibition in the Dales Countryside Museum, In the footsteps of Turner, acknowledges this.

Some years ago now, the then Wensleydale Tourist Association established The Turner Trail which includes a number of seats placed in the same locations as some of Turner's paintings, to show the contrast with all those years ago.

Over time, some of these bench-seats are looking a bit worse for wear or are not as easy to see or to access, so it is hoped at this bi-centenary time to check them, renovate and keep them usable. Anyone who can assist in this is asked to contact Ruth Annison, 650349.

The seats within the Newsletter area are at:
Askrigg Market Place; Nappa Scar; Carperby;
Castle Bolton; Mossdale Head Falls; Semerwater;
West Burton.

Best Foot Forward

This is a Best Foot Forward with a bit of a difference. As well as the usual walking gear it involves carrying a camera (nothing unusual about that), a clipboard, a tape measure and a load of papers. Let me explain.

On August 1st this year the Yorkshire Dales National Park will be extended by 24%, mostly into Cumbria but also into Lancashire. This has been a controversial extension and it has been a long time coming. Some people were hopeful, others fearful, that it may never happen but here it is, another 161 square miles. That means another 297 miles of public rights of way, all of which need to be brought up to the standard of the rest of the national park. An army of volunteers was mobilised to check all the footpaths and bridleways prior to the designation date. Each volunteer was allocated a specific parish and set forth with the aforementioned equipment to record the state of affairs.

Exploring new areas is always quite exciting and I was presented with part of the parish of Crosby Ravensworth, an area which was unfamiliar to me. This is in the Lyvennet valley (a tributary of the River Eden), which in many places is quite delightful. My centre of activity was Maulds Meaburn, a pretty little village which straddles the Lyvennet Beck.

Planning a route round the footpaths to be surveyed is always a little tricky. Quite often you need to go in two directions at the same time, so inevitably there is a degree of backtracking to cover all the paths. However, I managed to devise a route that was reasonably efficient. It started near Maulds Meaburn and progressed northwards to Lankaber. This is very much at the northern edge of the park extension and it was there that I first made contact with the local people. After a discussion with a youngish farmer about the problems of lambing at night (this being April) I asked him how he felt about being in the national park. He said "absolutely fine; we're not in it. The boundary is up by that wall." Later I asked a couple the same question. They said they didn't know whether they were in it or not. I told them they were but they didn't seem too bothered.

Following paths southwards now it was obvious that the state of the rights of way were better than I had expected. There was the odd barbed wire obstruction, missing signpost and collapsed stile but by and large they were trouble free. On the way I asked a few more people what they felt about being granted national park status. The majority were fairly laid back about it. One or two thought there might be more tourists and as a result more traffic and teashops. One lady was much more excited about showing us a wild cherry tree which she was getting recorded on an ancient tree register. Maybe National Park status would help her cause. Mind you, she did say "the people of Shap are cock-a-hoop about being excluded from the park." There were also a few people who felt uneasy about being in the Yorkshire Dales National Park, this being the old Westmorland, of course.

After a while I followed a track towards Crosby Ravensworth. For a good half mile down this track there was a six-inch diameter blue pipe. I soon became aware that there was a faint hissing noise coming from the pipe which occasionally twitched and juddered. It was obvious that the contents were farm slurry being pumped uphill under enormous pressure. I walked alongside it cautiously, keeping an eye open for spurting leaks, especially at the joints, but managed to reach the village without being sprayed.

Turning north again I followed Lyvennet Beck back to Maulds Meaburn, passing a large privately owned mansion called Flass House (scene of a criminal cannabis growing gang in 2010) and eventually the much older Meaburn Hall (a Jacobean residence of the Lowther family). The walk was about nine miles, during which I had surveyed fourteen footpaths and photographed and measured a dozen bridges, one of which had been quite severely damaged by the winter floods. It was a pleasant walk but somehow it felt different from the Dales: there were more hedges than walls and the scenery was less spectacular. Ultimately I thought the area didn't quite deserve National Park recognition but the it has much to commend it and it is well worth a visit.

Heavens Above

The nights get a wee bit darker this month, just in time for the return of the annual Perseids meteor shower, one of the best of the year. The Perseids (named after the constellation they appear to radiate from) are active from July 17th through to the last week in August, but the best time to spot one of these bright swift 'shooting stars' is on the night of the 12/13th when the shower reaches its peak. After midnight when the Moon has set you should be able to glimpse at least one a minute - in a very good year up to a hundred an hour. Perseid meteors are extremely fast, travelling up to 60 kilometers a second, and often leave persistent yellow-white 'trains' right across the sky. They're also noted for producing an above average amount of 'fireballs' - really brilliant meteors which can sometimes outshine the full Moon.

Unlike 'sporadic' meteors which turn up at any time, meteor showers occur around the same date each year. They're caused by the Earth passing through a stream of dust and debris ejected by a comet as it travels through the solar system. In the case of the Perseids the parent comet is 109P/Swift-Tuttle which takes about 130-odd years to orbit the Sun. This year we're due to encounter two streams of dust particles (left behind by Swift-Tuttle in 1479 and 1862) so with a bit of luck the hourly rate may be very much higher than normal.

You don't need anything more than a bit of patience and your naked eyes for spotting shooting stars - binoculars will only restrict your view - but you do need to find a location well away from street lamps and other sources of artificial lighting. And, at the risk of sounding namby-pambyish, wrap up warm - the cold will eventually get to you even on a balmy summer's night if you're not properly kitted out. Here's hoping for clear skies!

Both talks will be held at the Dales Countryside Museum in Hawes, starting at 11.45am and immediately followed by a rare Viewing of the Midland Railway's book of original engineering drawings for the bridges (viaducts) on the branch line from Garsdale to Hawes.

This six mile line opened in 1876 and closed in 1959. There will also be an Open Hour at the restored Hawes Weighbridge Hut - the former coal merchant's office in the station yard. Walking For St. Margaret's

A very big thank you on behalf of Friends of St Margaret's Church, Hawes to all who sponsored me in walking The Pennine Way. What an experience it was! There were many special moments but the highlight, apart from actually finishing at Kirk Yetholm, was the view of Wensleydale the day I walked the section from Horton to Gayle. There were many great views before and after but none to match that. Many thanks also to Andrew Fagg, Les Bartle and Chris Fogg who each walked a day with me. Their support was much appreciated.

The total of all the donations and gift aid amounts to £1,406. All this money will now go towards the next phase of the church restoration including the creation of a kitchen area and the installation of toilets. Once again, thank you to all who made donations. Anyone who would still like to donate can do so on the Local Giving website or direct through any member of the church.

Wensleydale School News

Wensleydale School and Sixth Form Debaters at the Grand Final

Our Year 9 Debate Team travelled down to Eton on July 6th to compete at the Grand Final. Eight teams had qualified from around the country – from Guisborough to Plymouth and Wensleydale to London. Each team had attended the London Masterclasses to hone their skills and receive training from some of the best coaches in the country. Imogen Hayden, Sam Maunder and Rosalind Monaghan worked very well as a team and were able to conceptually and linguistically bamboozle their opponents. The Grand Finals were held at Eton College in their purpose built debate chamber, and each team took part in three debates – one pre-planned and two impromptu. The top two teams from these debates qualified for the Final. Though our team won their first match, they narrowly lost the second match, and they were unable to accrue enough points from the third match to qualify as one of the top two teams. It was an incredible experience for the students, who performed at a very high level throughout the competition – Northern regionals to Grand Final. They are now looking to experience debating in more competitions and have a realistic target of selection for National Debate squads. Now back in school they are working on creating a debate league in Wensleydale School and Sixth Form, to help students in other year groups experience the excitement of formal debate. The league will be launched in September and at the same time preparation will begin for the new Year 9 team to enter next year's Up for Debate national competition

The Bigger, Better Bainbridge Bash ...

Hawes School News

On Friday July 1st the nursery children were treated to a very special and exciting morning. To start the fun the play bus came from Kirkby Lonsdale for the children to explore. Once the children were in the car park they were treated to an LED display on the front of the bus which said "Welcome Hawes Nursery." When the children climbed on board they were soon running around and investigating all the different areas, including the ball pit, the dark den, the slide from the top deck to the bottom deck, dressing up box and props, karaoke machine and creative area. In addition to this there were soft play sections to investigate! Once back in Nursery the children were provided with a fantastic picnic lunch made by Mrs Calvert in the canteen.

KS2 Sponsored Walk

I would like to pass on my thanks and congratulations to all of the pupils, staff and parents who successfully completed our sponsored walk up Wether Fell. Thankfully the weather was kind to us. I think we all knew we had been on a challenging walk by the end of the day – but I am really pleased if not amazed to see how much money is being raised and I think everyone can be really proud of the effort they have gone to in order to earn that sponsorship. Well done one and all!

Thank you also to everyone who has sponsored our walkers – it really is an impressive total that we will be able to put towards our library development in the autumn .

Ali Baba and the Bongo Bandits Production

Huge congratulations to all the children who took part and performed in our production of 'Bongo Bandit'. The children did a fantastic job learning all their lines and songs and their hard work really paid off. I think we have some budding stars in our midst! We would like to thank the parents who provided costumes/props and who came to watch and support us.

Planning for the Future

The Governing Board and headteacher of the BAWB Federation (Bainbridge, Askrigg and West Burton Primary Schools) continues to consider future options for the structure of the classes within the federation in order to maintain the schools' viability. The National Funding Formula, falling pupil numbers, and the reduction of some financial protection for our Local Authorities (as they are gradually disbanded) mean that small schools are having to take action to achieve financial sustainability and secure the best possible educational provision for our children. We are well-placed to take such action within our federation.

Having taken on board the views of the community regarding a recent proposal to change our structure from September, we have decided to dedicate the autumn term to consider a number of options in liaison with our Local Authority's Strategic and Financial services. Of course, we will continue to communicate closely with our communities and will be in a position to secure a decision by October half-term; one which will best meet the needs of our children in the long-term and one which demonstrates that we have taken into account the views of our parents and communities.

Prunings August

A couple of days after this was written— July 15th – was St Swithin’s Day. Forty days wet or forty days dry according to the legend. I understand from Garden News that in fact, since modern records began we have never had forty days of either, so much for ancient sayings! Walking along the road today it was noticeable how the greens have matured, losing their spring freshness, but one really encouraging aspect is that so far there is no sign of the dreaded Ash Die-back that has long been threatened. As far as I can see all the trees look healthy and the ash keys are forming. Is it just taking a long time to get here, or have we escaped? Many of the rural roadsides have not been cut, and the rubbish growing in them is beginning to take over. I know there is an argument for letting them grow naturally, but I’m not sure that we really need the horsetail and forests of nettles that are becoming the norm. In addition, when the herbage is wet it hangs into the road reducing the width. Travelling along some of our lanes is becoming positively hazardous. Despite the wet, late spring and cool conditions, many plants are now producing seed and you only need an odd dry day to collect them for future use. Paper bags or old envelopes work well, but plastic is best avoided as it retains too much moisture and they tend to go mouldy. When the pods have dried, the contents can be shaken out and kept in a cool place. Some seeds, especially hellebores, need to be sown quickly as if they are left to mature it is very difficult to break the dormancy. Those who are members of the RHS will know that there is a seed distribution scheme and members send in seed for exchange. Several organisations provide this service, so if you enjoy growing from seed, publications such as the Cottage Garden Society are worth joining, and they publish a quarterly magazine. Last year someone gave me a daylily (Hemerocallis). I regret to say that I dropped it in a bucket, hid it in a corner and completely forgot about it. (I’m beginning to worry about the increase in senior moments.) It is a testament to the survivability of these magical plants that I noticed an unexpected flower in the aforementioned corner, and there it was. It has probably been drenched, drowned and dried out several times in the intervening months, but it has survived and increased. I shall certainly get more and there are some wonderful colours available. If you want perfume go for the yellow varieties, give them plenty of room, and apart from dead-heading they take very little looking after, apart from splitting them when they are too big!

Finally I filled my tubs with red geraniums and they are wonderfully cheerful, when the sun shines! Good luck! And whatever you grow, take time to enjoy it.

Police Report

It is with great pleasure that I inform yourselves that Upper Wensleydale has been exceptionally quiet in terms of crime reported. There have been two thefts one of which included a Landrover Defender from the Askrigg area. We have received numerous reports of suspicious circumstances phoned in by the public, which show that you are remaining alert; keep it up! The number of RTCs is down with only one being reported. On another note, NYP has received intelligence that persons are out, actively looking for soft target Quad bike thefts, so please be aware and keep them as secure as is possible, this includes taking the keys out when unattended!
